Agnes Tiong Hui Sing is a 15-year-old Chinese athlete from Sarawak, Malaysia. She has an intellectual disability, hearing impairments, and a medical condition diagnosed at an early age. Despite these challenges, Agnes is a remarkable Special Olympics athlete who will be representing Team Malaysia at the Special Olympics World Games in Berlin 2023.

Agnes excels in table tennis and will compete in the Women's Singles and Mix Doubles events with her teammate Edwin. She has shown immense dedication and perseverance, training seven days a week with two different coaches, Coach Mary from school and Coach Kong from the Ping Pong Association. Agnes has made significant progress in her fitness and behavior since joining Special Olympics Sarawak Table Tennis training in 2022.

Outside of sports, Agnes has a passion for arts and painting. She has been involved in these activities since kindergarten. Although she finds it challenging to memorize dance steps, she still enjoys dancing. Agnes's mother has been a constant source of support and care throughout her journey, and her doctor has certified her fit to continue training and preparing for the World Games.

Agnes's coaches and healthcare team believe she has the potential to bring glory to Malaysia. Despite her limited understanding of competition, Agnes's simplicity and focus allow her to stay calm and undistracted during matches. Her journey in table tennis began when Coach Mary discovered her talent and decided to focus on the sport. Agnes's mother's support has been instrumental in her progress.

Agnes's story is one of resilience and determination. She is an inspiration to others, and her hard work and persistence are expected to lead to success at the Special Olympics World Games in Berlin.
